The newly released NSTeens content features animated comic-book-style characters who model safer online practices. The materials include animations, peer response videos, and an interactive webcomic to address issues such as social networking and cyberbullying. To supplement this dynamic content, educators, parents, and guardians are provided with safety tips, classroom activities, and discussion starters to open the lines of communication with their tweens. Their logline is “Can these friends help each other make the right decisions online and in the real world?” Find out more about the crew and available resources by visiting <http://www.NSTeens.org>.
